Detlef Schrempf, Business Development

Item 2 - Educational Background and Business Experience

Detlef Schrempf is a Business Development Officer. Prior to joining Coldstream, he was a General Partner at Athlon Ventures, a private equity fund he co-founded in 1999. Athlon Ventures invested in venture capital, real estate, and other unique opportunities. Mr. Schrempf was responsible for fund raising, deal flow, strategic partnerships, and marketing.

In 1985 after an All-American career at University of Washington he started his professional basketball career in the NBA, which lasted 16 years. In 1993 Detlef started working with adidas international and initiated their global basketball grassroots program through the adidas All-Star Camps. He has directed these camps in Europe, Asia, South America, and the US and has helped re-structure and build new concepts and projects for the grassroots program throughout the last decade.

He has actively invested in a diversified portfolio of corporations, real estate development, manufacturing, and hotel industry entities. Detlef Schrempf spent the 2006 and 2007 seasons as an assistant coach with the Seattle Sonics in the National Basketball Association. His responsibilities besides coaching included scouting, preparation, and developing a data base for concepts and plays.

Detlef was born in 1963 and studied International Business at the University of Washington.
